1) PROJECT INFORMATION

Field of expertise related to the topic: I'm a Maker Advocate as part of the Dublin Maker team who runs a free annual community driven and largest Irish Maker fair in Dublin as well as advocating diversity in tech (latter since 2012). As part of Dublin Maker's 2-year programme called MADE (funded by SFI and hosted by Dublin City University), part of what I do is to develop new partnerships with organisations (not for profits, commercial sectors, top-down government initiatives, and grassroots) and individuals in areas of making, and diversity & inclusion. Outreaching communities in economically disadvantaged areas and minority groups which includes older people, people with with disabilities, etc. Exploring possibilities in public engagement, encouraging citizen participation from all levels of society, help facilitate creating Maker and STE(A)M activities making it accessible for all.
